Chain Link

Made of galvanized steel, chain link fences cannot be destroyed by pests nor rot. Chain link does not attract dirt or debris, and it never needs painting or staining. Other than occasionally sweeping off leaves and cobwebs, a chain link fence is little to low maintenance. This makes it an excellent choice for commercial applications and homeowners who are not interested in adding to their list of maintenance items

Vinyl Chain Link

Vinyl-coated chain link fence comes in black, green, brown and white color. In contrast with galvanization, PVC-coating provides better performance in improving appearance and corrosion and rust resistance. It is for this reason, color-coated chain link fence is increasingly applied by more and more customers. They can be found in residential garden, yard and commercial park, business area and athlete fields

Corrugated Steel

One of the major benefits of corrugated steel is that it's a durable metal fence panel that will maintain its shape no matter what climate it's in. It can handle extreme temperatures, rain, snow, hail, and more.

Corrugated steel is also resistant to rusting, therefore keeping its desired appearance regardless of the weather.

A Corrugated Steel fence can be customized according to the customer's choice. It can be unpainted, painted and treated to be a Luxury Patina color.

WROUGHT IRON

Wrought iron fencing is an elegant and sophisticated design, but its benefits extend far beyond aesthetics. Aside from its prominence in affluent neighborhoods, wrought iron fencing is commonly seen around schools or government buildings – and with good reason.

Wrought iron fencing offers a great deal of security since it is difficult to climb and nearly impossible to break into. Reassurance is guaranteed with wrought iron fence as it's best to choose a fence that is tall and has posts closer to one another.

Cedar Fence

Cedar is among the two types of wood that are highly durable when it comes to fences. It contains natural oils that help make it resistant to decay and insects. This natural oil increases durability and strength without the use of chemical treatments. Cedar is also a highly stable wood. Meaning, there is minimal shrinkage. When used to build a fence, cedar wood planks will stay straight and sturdy for the long term.

Redwood Fence

Redwood's tannins give the lumber warm tones and exemplary strength against insects and moisture, proving its durability time and time again. Redwood is a renewable resource and environmentally responsible choice for projects. There are no landfill issues with redwood either because redwood is recyclable and entirely biodegradable. That's all part of why building with redwood goes hand-in-hand with living sustainable.

Wood with Steel Frame Fence

Do you like the look of wood but are concerned about durability? Luckily, having a steel frame around wood pickets helps improve the durability of a wood fence significantly. Slats can be placed vertical or horizontal.

Barbed Wire Fence

Barbed Wire Fences consist of 2-4 longitudinal wires twisted together to form cable and having wire barbs wound around either or both of the cable wires at regular intervals. Extremely effective in keeping wildlife out.

Chain Link with Barbed Wire

Barbed Wire can be added on top of any fence for added security.

Welded Wire Fence

Welded Wire fence is actually made by spot-welding the intersections of the horizontal and vertical wires. The mesh pattern creates a spacing that is typically between 1/2" and 4" apart. The construction creates a rigid enclosure for a firm barrier.

Cable Wire Fence

A cable fence simply replaces traditional balusters with thin, discreet stainless steel cable. That cable is usually made from stainless or galvanized steel, and it varies in thickness.

Block Fence

Are you looking for a long-lasting fence? A concrete block wall is a wall made up of standard size concrete blocks. The standard size is 8 inches, however, depending on the design parameters and standards set by an engineer for the concrete structure, the block sizes may vary

Stucco Fence

Stucco is made of cement, water, sand, plus lime. Stucco is breathable – it has tiny pores that allow water to evaporate from behind it so that moisture doesn't build up and cause rot. Stucco may also be combined with other materials, such as: wrought iron, wood & vinyl.

Custom Dog Kennels

Kennels are designed to provide shelter and safety for dogs.

Along with giving them access to plenty of fresh air and sunlight, kennels keep pets safe whenever they're outdoors. They will also help keep pestering neighbors or other troubled dogs away. If enjoying the outdoors safely is desired, then having a kennel is a must. They're also a cost-effective alternative to dog fences.

Vehicle Gate Options

This is the most affordable type of gate to get a car or truck through. Swing-open gates range from 6'-20' in width. Our chain link double swing gates are made with 14 gauge steel, which is thicker than most standard chain link gates. The double swing gate opens up to 180° for ease of use. This allows it to be left open or closed while still providing access at all times
